Gilson took exception to street paving specifications which call for asphaltic "back" pavement.

Gilson stated that concrete pavement is superior, and also that as the Pacific Portland Cement Company is a local industry and the second largest taxpayer in the county that its product should be given a chance to compete in street improvement work with other types of pavement.

NEW MANAGER HERE FOR SEQUOIA THEATRE

Thomas J. Kane

Management of the Sequoia Theatre in this city was assumed this week by Thomas J. Kane, who succeeds Otway J. Cosgrave, who for the past three years has managed the local house for Ellis J. Arkush, and whose resignation was made known last week.

The new manager is a man of wide theatrical experience both in the cinima and with the legitimate stage. He has been managing theArkush theatre in San Mateo for the past four years, and for the past two years was manager of the New San Mateo Theatre.

During his residence in San Mateo he became highly regarded by the people of that community and great regret was expressed at his leaving. He has taken an active interest in a number of home talent productions there and has added particularly to the annual Elk's charity party.

Tom, as he was known to nearly everyone in San Mateo, will take up his residence here with Mrs. Kane and their four children.

Otway Cosgrave, the retiring manager, in leaving the Sequoia Theatre, carries with him the best wishes of the people of Redwood City. He has been manager of the theatre here for the past three years, and in that time has endeared himself to the theatre-goers of the community. His ever courteous and gentlemanly manner and his efforts to make his theatre popular with the people of Redwood City have won him the respect and friendship of all who knew him. Tradition

HOW rich is the heritage of the American citizen! Youthful, as nations go, we are rich in tradition and history. As time is measured, it has not been long since America, as a nation, consisted of a few scattered villages and hamlets along the Atlantic seaboard.

Fortunately these humble communities harbored men and women imbued with the pioneer spirit, the spirit that has passed down from generation to generation and made possible the American of today.

These pioneers of yesterday overcame unbelievable obstacles to found a nation that should one day span a continent. Peril and hardship were their daily lot, but they fought through for the sake of their dream, that we who come after them should have security and prosperity.

These pioneers of yesterday have endowed every nook and corner of America with a wealth of tradition. There is not a community in our land that is not indebted to them, and we who now enjoy the fruits of their labor and vision owe them the debt of completing the work they so well began. The spirit of the pioneer calls out of the past for us to carry on.

Where better can we start than right here in Redwood City? Here, as elsewhere, the civic founders dreamed of an ideal community, and for their sake and the sake of the ones who come after us, we must do our share.

Note the challenge in the Community Development page found elesewhere in this issue, made possible by our local business firms. It is a message worthy of our utmost consideration.

FUTURE SUPPLY OF WATER IS TOPIC OF LIONS CLUB TALK

M. J. Bartell, assistant engineer in the office of M. M. O'Shaughnessy, city engineer of San Francisco, spoke on the water supply of the peninsula before members of the Redwood City Lion's Club Tuesday evening. Bartell spoke in favor of the formation of a peninsula water district.

The speaker predicted a population of 400,000 in San Mateo county by 1950. The present water sources will be entirely inadequate for this population, he stated, and the county must begin now to look for a fuller supply of water to meet its needs.

Employees of the Redwood City postoffice enjoyed a picnic a short distance south of Pigeon Point last Sunday. The events of the day included an abalone hunt which resulted in several of the members securing the limit.

14 Schools In Swim Meet At Sequoia Pool

The blue and chlorinated waters of the Sequoia Union High School's swimming pool will be the scene of great activity Friday night at 8 o'clock, when some 14 schools are sending swimmers to participate in the North Coast Section championship swimming meet.

Because of the fact that the pool has been enlarged to standard size, N. C. S. officials agreed that it was well suited for the meet, ample bleachers being supplied to accomodate the spectators.

The diving board has been moved to one side, enabling the onlookers to obtain the best view possible of the competing divers.

Heats will be held Friday afternoon, the finals occurring Friday night, under a number of powerful flood lights. Students will be admitted for 25 cents, if they have student body cards, but the general admission is 50 cents.

This is the first time that any championship swimming meet has been held at Sequoia, the Sequoian coaches thinking that the event speaks well for the popularity of the Redwood City school.

Last year the meet was held at Sutro Baths, San Francisco, but because of the reconditioning of the Cherokee pool, local fans will have the opportunity to witness the aquatic classic.

The best high school swimmers of ulimited class will compete in this meet, which occurs tonight at 8 o'clock in the pool of Sequoia Union High School.

Exchange Club In Joint Meet With Palo Alto

The peninsula region has far more to offer than any other section of California for industrial development, according to C. A. Flemming, manager of the industrial department of the San Francisco Chamber of Commerce, in an address before a joint meeting of the Redwood City and Palo Alto Exchange clubs held Tuesday evening at the Cafe de Paris on the highway. Fleming stated that all that is needed in this section for a great industrial development is for the community to become salesminded.

The meeting Tuesday evening was attended by practically every member of both clubs. The program had been arranged jointly by Kendall Towne, president of the Redwood City club and Edward Zweirlein, president of the Palo Alto club. It consisted of musical and novelty numbers, among them songs by the Stanford Glee Club quartette, and solos by Adolph Keney of Redwood City.

A feature of the entertainment was a burlesque presented by Burnell Gould and Paul Speegle, radio entertainers from Stanford.

Consolidation Group In General Discussion

The San Francisco - San Mateo county consolidation committee met Tuesday to continue the study of the various aspects of the proposed consolidation of the two counties. At this meeting San Mateo county was represented by Marsden S. Blois and Major C. N. Kirkbride of San Mateo and E. B. Hinman of Redwood City.

The meeting was presided over by Chairman Coldwell and involved a general discussion of what has gone before in the previous meetings of the consolidation committee, and plans for further eliciting and development of facts in connection with consolidation.

In a discussion concerning the financial aspect of consolidation as it would affect both San Mateo county and San Francsco, it was suggested by Colonel Allen G. Wright that at some future time a special committee to consider this matter be set up.

The thought was expressed by Major C. N. Kirkbride that in its future sessions the committee include an extended study of consolidation as it has been carried out in Pittsburgh, Pennsylvania, and also in New York City.

E. B. Hinman, chairman, and Major C. N. Kirkbride, vice-chairman of the committee on governmental functions, agreed to complete the San Mateo portion of this committee at a early date with Colbert Coldwell appointing the San Francisco representatives thereon.

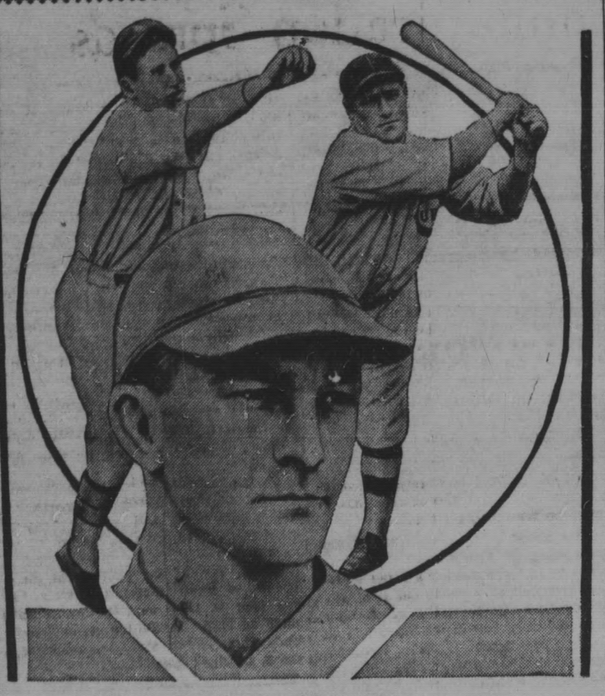
Three Outfield Slugging Stars



Imposing Trio of Cub Hitters.

There was a lot of speculation over the National league loop last spring as to what the Cubs would do with Cuyler added to their outfield that already boasted of Wilson and Stephenson. It was bruited about that here were three .350 hitters on one team and they would crash their way through all league defenses. But Stephenson fell off 20 points in his hitting and Cuyler, a demon in the springtime, always slumps in hitting in midsummer, so the Cubs fell just a few games short of the flag.

They are talking about Hornsby and his .400 hitting average and what he will do for the Cubs this year. But the Cubs still have that potential outfield. All three of these men are what they call natural hitters. They have the eye, the stance, the swing and the aptitude of the free-handed slugger, and men of this type are always dangerous and always apt to come back with a .350 average.

Even though they did not play up to their full form last season there is no doubt but that this trio, on their records, rank with the Yankee trio as the two best outfields in baseball at this time.

Stephenson batted .324 last season and batted in 80 runs, and made 36 two-baggers as his contribution to extra base clouting. Stevie's six-year batting record in the majors averaged .340, his slump in 1928 bringing him down to .330.

Cuyler batted only .284 last season, a drop of more than 70 points from his 1925 record, but he scored 92 runs and batted in 79 runs, and he led both leagues in stolen bases with 37, made 17 home runs and 25 two-baggers. This is a remarkable offensive performance to go with such a modest batting average. Then Cuyler is a ball hawk in the field.

Cuyler hit for an average of .344 during the years of 1924, 1925, 1926. He is twenty-nine years old and played six seasons on the big time. His batting slump of the past two seasons is inexplicable. He is fast, keen, smart and takes excellent care of himself.

Hack Wilson has had a brief but troubled career on the big time. When he came to McGraw in 1924 he blossomed early that spring into a corking fielder, a fast runner, a slashing hitter and an aggressive and popular player. The Polo fans doted on him. But he went into a batting slump in midsummer that changed the cheers into a wreath of raspberry. The next spring he could not hit at all, so McGraw sent him to Toledo with a string attached. The string slipped or broke or something and Wilson became Toledo property. When he fell back to double A he suddenly found himself and began to slug the ball. The Cubs grabbed him in the draft next winter.

Stephenson once hit .371 for Cleveland in the American league. That was back in 1924. He was an infielder then, and his defensive play was so weak that it did not offset his big batting average. They finally let him go to Indianapolis. He slugged his way back to the big show, this time appearing with the Cubs as an outfielder. He worked like a Trojan to perfect his outfield play and finally succeeded. He hit .338 in 1926 and .344 in 1927, and became a star. Stephenson came from the University of Alabama and is twenty-nine years old.

Here is an outfield capable of hitting right at the .350 mark. Add Hornsby with his .400 batting punch to all this dynamite and you have offensive power that is sure to gain a lot of ground in any campaign against any foe.

Johnny Evers Feels Hopeful of Braves

Johnny Evers, the former "human crab" of baseball, is sort of a polyanna in his new job as assistant manager of the Braves under Judge Emil Fuchs. He sees great seasons for Lester Bell, infielder, and George Sisler, first sacker, and thinks the spirit of the club is excellent.

"It looks as if we are going to have a good hustling ball club." Evers wrote to his brother, Joe Evers of Albany.

League Is Disbanded

The Utah-Idaho league directors have voted to disband the circuit. This drastic and unexpected action was taken, it is claimed, because Pacific Coast league clubs, which have been backing several of the entries in the little mountain loop, have withdrawn their support. At the time the magnates decided to call it quits only the Salt Lake City club had Coast league backing, this coming from the San Francisco Seals. The Utah-Idaho developed many youngsters.

STONEHAM LIKES GIANTS' CHANCES

Owner of Team Believes New Yorkers Will Win Out.

In the opinion of Charles A. Stoneham, president and principal owner of the Giants, his club is one of the four which will fight it out for the pennant and he believes that the Giants under John J. McGraw have enough of an edge on the three others to turn the tide in their favor, barring the possibility of serious injury to important players at some critical period of the race.

"McGraw has brought back from the South a well balanced team that has overcome its greatest weakness of a year ago," he said. "That weakness was its inexperience. The young fellows who lacked experience last year now have it and the additions we have made have added strength where it was needed.

"The race will not be an easy one, from what I can observe and from what Manager McGraw tells me. The Cubs, Pirates and St. Louis must be reckoned with. But if the fight really is among these three clubs and the Giants, you will find the Giants in every scrap and battling to the last. I think McGraw has put together a fine team. The pitching is much improved, the catching should be greatly bettered and the reserves are strong. McGraw is very keen on having reserve strength and he seems to be pretty well satisfied with what he now has.

"I said the fight looked as if it would be among four clubs. As a matter of fact, it may be a much different race, with several other clubs making trouble.

"Everything considered, I feel optimistic about the Giants coming through. I have taken a leaf from Manager McGraw's book, however, and refuse to be precise about our winning. There are such things as jinxes and I would hate to conjure one up to injure our chances."

POULTRY

SANITARY RUNWAY QUITE VALUABLE

Brooding Platform May Be Used With Fair Success.

(By G. T. Klein, Extension Poultryman, K. S. A.)

By making use of the "sanitary runway," the permanent brooder house that has for years been the menace of the poultry industry may be used with a fair degree of success.

The runway is merely a brooding platform that is placed in front of the brooder house. It has a floor of one-half inch hail screen or hardware cloth. The wire floor, which is about 15 inches from the ground, allows all droppings and filth to fall through. Wire sides and top of one inch poultry netting confines the chicks to the runway and protects them from enemies.

The sanitary runway accomplishes everything that turning the chicks outside will accomplish, giving them exercise and sunlight and keeping them from contaminated soil. Diseases are less likely to spread when chicks are running on the wire floor, for they have less opportunity of infection.

The runway may be ten feet wide and the entire length of the brooder house. The framework may be constructed of 1 by 4 inch material. These boards are placed on edge to support the floor. Boards may be spaced two feet apart. The wire may be either 24 or 48 inch widths. The 48-inch material makes a slightly stronger floor. Sides should be two feet high. Sections of the top should be hinged for ease in filling the feeders and care for the chicks.

Sufficient Number of Nests Properly Placed

The number of nests in relation to the size of the laying flock during the heavy laying season is important. With a sufficient number of nests properly placed there is less danger of eggs being deposited in the litter and becoming lost, stepped on, or otherwise broken.

Nests should be darkened; they should be so constructed that it is easy for one to see and remove the eggs. If nests are too large eggs may be broken by two of more hens crowding into them. Twelve by fourteen inches is suggested for the larger breed and ten by twelve inches for the smaller breeds. Nests should be easy to remove to facilitate cleaning.

Turkey's Natural Food Lines Often Overlooked

Then there are a good many persons working with turkeys in a small way who do not recognize one of the turkey's natural food lines; they fail to remember, if they ever knew, that the turkey's food in its wild state consisted chiefly of insects, beechnuts, acorns, berries, and so forth, with but little corn. The average poultry raiser who has not studied Mr. Turkey's former habits of life feeds too much corn and corn-meal, the latter especially. So much corn-meal for small turkeys tends to pack the crop and cause indigestion and liver trouble.

Poultry Notes

Clean ground enables poultrymen to carry more pullets to maturity.

Sanitation and breeding are both essential in eliminating poultry diseases.

Any flock that will average better than 120 eggs per bird is a profitable flock.

More moisture is required for turkey eggs used for hatching purposes than for chicken eggs.

Gluten feed is a by-product obtained in the manufacture of glucose and cornstarch. It is used in the mash as a source of protein.

Remember, a start in turkeys costs no more than a start of any good breed of chickens; there is always a good market for your turkeys.

Early hatching of chickens this spring and proper handling of the pullets will bring them into laying condition next fall during the months of high-priced eggs.

Market premium for high-quality eggs has aroused an interest in larger egg size. There are inherited tendencies toward large and small eggs. Careful selection at time of placing eggs in the incubator should contribute to the improvement of the size of the eggs of a flock.

Freedom from disease is essential to growing a large percentage of the chicks hatched. Choose eggs from disease-free parents, or if you buy back chicks get them from flocks known to be free from bacillary white diarrhea.

Wheat is another valuable poultry feed, being very palatable. It is generally always included in the scratch feed, and its by-products, wheat bran and wheat meddlings, are used in the mash. Red-dog flour and wheat shorts are also mash feeds.

It is now a common custom to feed the scratch grain in hoppers. Dry whole corn will not mould in the hoppers either in the house or on a range.

A moist mash, when fed regularly, furnishes a desirable means of feeding cod-liver oil to poultry. One-fourth pint of cod-liver oil may be added to the moist mash daily for each 100 birds. This plan of feeding cod-liver oil eliminates the mixing of the oil with the dry mash and also helps to prevent deterioration of the oil after the mash is mixed.

Radio Communication Spreads

Washington.—Radio communication, once a plaything of scientists in their laboratories, is becoming the universal medium of entertainment and transfusion of thought, according to a world survey recently concluded by the Commerce department.

Broadcasting stations, the report shows, are operating near the Arctic circle, on the equator, and far down in the Southern hemisphere. From Greenland to Ceylon and from Yugo-Slavia to China radio sets are being tuned in to catch practically the same type of programs given in the United States.

In the short decade since the conquest of the ether for popular use began, more than 20,000,000 radio sets have been placed in homes all over the world, the commerce report states.

Though the United States uses nearly half these sets, Great Britain and Germany have 2,500,000 each; France has 11,250,000; Japan, 550,000, and Argentina, 530,000. Sweden, Austria, Czechoslovakia and Italy each have more than 250,000.

While American radio fans are entertained by programs provided by advertisers, in most European countries the government owns the broadcasting stations and pays entertainers by taxing the man at the loud speaker.

These taxes, the report says, range from 5 cents per radio set in France to $18 in Salvador. The British tax is $2.45; the German, $5.70; and Australian, $5.85, and the Japanese, $9.

European stations generally outrank those of this country in power, it was said. Russia and Finland each maintain stations with 40,000 watts power; Sweden has two stations of 30,000 and 20,000 watts each; France has one of 20,000; while the largest British station is rated at 16,000 watts. There are more than 200 broadcasting stations in Europe. South America has 62; Australia, 25, and Japan, 7.

American industry, the department said, manufactures a large share of the world's radio equipment. Approximately 90 per cent of the world's output is made in America, Germany and Great Britain.

United States exports of radio apparatus have been increasing steadily in the last decade. In 1928, they reached a value of $12,000,000, a record figure.

During the last seven years, it was said, more than $50,000,000 worth of radio equipment and supplies have been sold by America to foreign markets.

Canada is our most important customer for radio material, taking 44 per cent of this country total shipment in 1928. Argentina ranked second, taking 13 per cent, and Australia, third, buying 9 per cent.

Public Officials and Publicity

By THOMAS ARKLE CLARK
Dean of Men, University of Illinois.

Even in my earliest youth when ambition burned most hotly within me I had no desire to become a public official of any sort. I was going to be quite contented to run a locomotive on the narrow gauge railroad which crossed the prairies a short distance from our place, or if fortune favored me in any extravagant way possibly to be a conductor. Charlie Hixon, our next-door neighbor's boy of my own age, once in a burst of confidence, told me that he expected to go to congress, but such distinction had no allurement for me. There was too much criticism of such an official, too much publicity, too much of getting one's name into the newspapers. A congressman could not turn around or neglect to do so without some mention being made of the fact, in a Washington press dispatch. A lot of fellows I knew wanted to be President of the United States, but not I.

Now just supposing you were king of England or President of the United States. At first thought it would seem like a lot of fun. There would be a big salary, and a fine house in which to live—several houses if you were king—and people to wait on you and to send you things and all that. It looks soft. The President gets countless things at Thanksgiving and Christmas—carloads of turkeys and fresh eggs and collie dogs, and goodness knows what sorts of things are sent to a king.

But a great public official has no privacy. He can't legitimately call his soul his own. Every move he makes is commented on. Whatever he eats or wears or dares to think about—much less to express an opinion upon—gets into the newspapers. It must be wretchedly tiresome.

Now about going to church. If you were king or President it would always be in the Saturday's paper where you intended to worship the next day, if you had any intention of worshiping, and why you didn't intend to do so, if you didn't. I have wondered often if Mr. Coolidge during the summer really wanted to go to church every Sunday and listen to blind men or Scandinavians preach, or if he wouldn't rather sometimes stay at home and lie around reading the Sunday papers, or playing with one of the dogs. But if he didn't go he would have to make up reasons to satisfy the inquisitive newspaper men and maybe it's easier to go and sit quietly through the service and then to smile and wave your hand at everyone when the service is ended than it would be to explain why you stayed at home.

Nancy and I didn't go to church last Sunday. We stayed at home and had a beautifully quiet time and read Jane Austen's "Northanger Abbey." And no one asked us why, and we didn't get our names in the paper, but you see we are not public officials.

Monster Puzzles Scientists

Paris.—A stronge monster with an "almost human" head, which was killed in the Venezuelan jungles ten years ago, was described by Dr. Georges Montandon, noted French scientist, in a paper read before the members of the French Anthropological institute. Photographs of the monster were projected on a screen. The animal was described as having 32 teeth, no tail and being about the size of a large man.

The photograph, according to the scientists, revealed an unknown anthropoid, akin to the orang-outang species but closely resembling the Neaderthal man.

Doctor Montandon placed particular emphasis in his lecture on the size of the animal, saying it was much larger than the Atele apes which it resembles in some ways and larger than any anthropoid species ever found in Latin-America. This fact alone, he said, made the discovery of outstanding importance.

The scientist's paper told how the monster was killed by Francois De Loys, a French geologist and friend of Doctor Montandon, who penetrated unexplored depths of the Venezuelan jungle on a scientific expedition. One day, while seated in a temporary camp with a companion, the geologist heard a crashing in the branches of nearby trees.

A moment later two ape-like creatures jumped down into the camp clearing, waving their hairy arms. The two men fired and one animal fell.

The geologist immediately propped up the dead animal and photographed it at close range. He attempted to preserve the body or head but, owing to grave danger which overtook the party, was forced to abandon everything but his records in a notebook and the photograph.

A copy of the notes and the photograph were sent to Doctor Montandon, who said he had made extensive studies of the subject and hoped that an expedition could be formed to search the area where the animal was killed. He said hope of forming such an expedition was the cause of his silence on the subject in the past, but now he would be pleased if others undertook the journey.

Federal Prisoners to Learn Modern Farming

Washington.—Uncle Sam is out to make "scientific farmers" of federal prisoners.

Those assigned to farm work, under Department of Justice plans, will be given "a course equivalent to a short course in an agricultural college."

Plans for this and for development of farms connected with the prisons have been discussed by prison, Department of Agriculture and bureau of education officials. It is proposed to obtain assistance of county agents and co-operation of land grant colleges, the department said.

Nevada Desert Once Rich Land

Lovelock, Nev.—The barren stretches of Nevada once furnished rich pasture land for thousands of animals; its valleys were covered with deep waters of the ancient Lake Lahotan and its mountains were covered with verdure, is the theory advanced by John T. Reid, Lovelock naturalist, in explanation of the finding of the metacarpal bone of an elephant by road builders in a gravel pit at the depth of 20 feet.

"The head of a buffalo, which had been found in a gravel pit four miles southwest of Lovelock, was donated to the University of Nevada recently," Reid said. "This discovery was considered of special importance in the study of old Lake Lahotan, which not so long ago covered the entire area in which the city of Lovelock is now located. At that time, probably not longer than 1,000 years ago, when the lake was at its greatest height, Lovelock was under 320 feet of water.

"The head of a species of extinct horse," continued Reid, "was found in the graven banks northwestward of Pyramid lake. More recently, only two years ago, the bones of an extinct species of horse was found near Woolsey. It is probable the bones of the two horses came from the same species. However, there have been found in various parts of the Western mountain area, bones of three different types of horses. All these signify that these animals were numerous and ranged over considerable of the Western continent. The buffalo did not confine himself to the prairie regions of the Middle West, but he, too, was an animal that ranged all over the West.

"The discovery that has just been made, establishes that the buffalo must have been very numerous hereabouts, to have his remains found in two widely separated places, and it tells a story as well, that not over a thousand years ago, perhaps much less, these deserts were fertile to such an extent as to have provided food for countless numbers of wild animals."

Larks, Mocking Birds, Most Popular in U. S.

Washington.—Meadow larks and mocking birds are favorites the country over, Mrs. Katherine B. Tippetts of the General Federation of Women's Clubs finds as a result of a nationwide campaign to have each state adopt an official bird.

Most of the Southern states chose the mocking bird, while most of the Middle West selected the meadow lark. California named the condor and the District of Columbia chose the wood thrush.

Cost of World War Still Surpasses Billion a Year

Washington.—Twelve years after the entry of the United States into the World war, treasury experts estimated the money cost of the conflict to this nation at $37,000,000,000. It is still costing $1,200,000,000 a year.

This total cost, more than twice the total national debt of the United States, includes not only the net cost for the war period but the continuing costs of the war to the present date.

From the declaration of war, April 6, 1917, until the official end of the state of war between this country and Germany July 2, 1921, the estimated net cost to the United States is placed at $27,183,989,752.96.

But the costs did not cease with the declaration of peace and in the ten years since the guns were stilled the continuing costs of the war to the United States have been about $1,200,000 annually.

Interest on the public debt, care of the veterans and settlement of war claims are the principal continuing costs of the war. These costs are slowly decreasing, but it may be years before the war has been completely paid for.

Why Flowers Are Not Green

Flowers are not green because if they were they would not be noticed by insects. The propagation of flowering plants depends upon pollination with others like it. Insects traveling from one flower to another do most to bring about this fertilization which makes for reproduction. The colors of petals help the insect find the flowers.

Lure of Peaceful Pursuits

PEOPLE of the older generation often have been dismayed at the avidity with which their children aswered the call to arms when a war began. They have concluded that there must be some inherent human trait that demands an occasional outburst of war.

Whence arises the juvenile interest in things martial? Many of our leading educators now recognize that the textbooks used in our schools and colleges have furnished the motivation for the amazing interest that young people have in war. The educators are doing more than recognizing this fact: They are taking steps to change it. They are writing a set of new textbooks for use in the schools. The texts are not yet finished for all grades, yet more than 600,000 of them have already been studied by school children.

In these modern texts new values are placed on many human activities. War is relegated to a minor place; it is no longer glorified. The grim side of war, with its disease, destruction, sacrifice, and discomfort, is considered. In one of these texts, which is designed to fill the place of the old school history, only 2,000 words are devoted to telling of the American Civil war; as a rule the subject occupied fifty pages or more in the old histories. These modern textbooks attempt to present political economy in a manner as interesting as a fairy tale. They reserve their glamour for great inventions and for epochal scientific discoveries. They attempt to create keen interest in the practical things that are an aid to everyday living. Dr. Harold Rugg, professor of education at Teachers College, Columbia University, believes this to be "the first attempt ever made to 'condition' the minds of school children of a whole nation to tolerance, peace, and understanding of the world's people and problems."

To Simplify or Not To Simplify

That is the question.

"Simplified spelling will finally become the accepted form," declares Miss Martha Pierce of the English department of the College of the Pacific. "At present very few colleges will accept the new spelling although it is generally allowed by popular magazines, and high schools are beginning to sanction its use."

According to Miss Pierce, it is difficult to know where to stop in the simplification of spelling. It is a question whether to change only the spelling of words which differ greatly in their spelling and pronunciation or to extend the system to the entire language. At present, only a few of the most frequently used words are simplified, Miss Pierce says.

Why go all the way around spelling t h r o u g h when thru expresses the meaning; or t h o u g h, when tho serves the purpose. These two words have always been a "Jonah" to the printer, for they invariable come at the end of a line, making too many letters for the line, and as they cannot be divided into syllables, it means additional spacing. The "de-tailing" of the "ugh" in our young lives will be welcomed.

Taxes in 1940?

FAIR taxes stimulate progress, high taxes result in inertia and retrogression.

At the present time a large part of the European powers are struggling under a burden of debt that saddles business and the citizen with a terrible weight of taxes. We, in the United States, can observe and learn.

It is an unquestioned fact that the cost of government, particularly state, county and municipal, has been on the up-grade. Part of this can be laid to the cost of needed improvements and unavoidable expenditures; part also is due to too zealous an ambition which has resulted in large bond issues for public luxuries.

American citizens might do well to consider what the total tax bill will be ten years hence if it continues to increase as fast as it has in the past few years.

"Whereas" and "Resolved"

WHENEVER a set of men nurse a real or imaginary grievance until it becomes an affliction, they either write a letter to a newspaper or assemble in a body and pass a few "whereas" and some "resolveds." For some unexplainable reason this method of relieving injured feelings is supposed to be a cure-all has long been so considered and will probably continue to be so considered for a long time to come. Perhaps it is just as well. Having given vent to a lot of words and phrases that mean little or nothing when dissected and analyzed, the hurry of the passing days brings other and more important matters to the fore and another wrong is born and nursed. There are men who thrive and grow fat on resolutions about this, that and the other thing, but what, in the name of heaven, about the innocent public? A resolution is a resolution that's all there is of it—there is usually no reply, no rebuttal, no contradiction. Once resoluted the matter is fixed and final entity . It is settled. Fortunately — and this is the real point — resolutions may be loaded for a large-caliber arm, but the subsequent report sounds like a wet firecracker. Much whoopee, little effect.

The only way in which men can be effective in any activity—whether in business, social activity or union activity, is to acquire thorough knowledge of all facts, concentrate upon the result desired and then devote all the enegry possible in bringing about that result.

In doing this it will be found that personal contact and salesmanship accomplish what resolutions never will.—Typographical Journal.

A Million Aliens

AT least a million aliens are now residing in this country who obtained their reentry illegally, stated Representative Jed Johnson of Oklahoma, in introducing a bill in the House of Representatives to provide for the appointment of a committee to investigate and make a report on the illegal entrance of aliens into the United States. He said that he was convinced that evidence could be obtained showing that immigration officers had accepted bribes to allow the aliens to enter.

"In my judgment," Representative Johnson declared, "no greater crime can be permitted to exist in America than the promiscuous bootlegging of aliens into the United States. Especially is this true when it is considered from the standpoint of law enforcement. Congress recently voted increased millions in an effort to better enforce prohibition in America, ... But I submit for your consideraiton that it will continue to be difficult to have real effective prohibition enforcement when officers and those sworn to uphold the Constitution and laws of the United States permit the illegal entry of more than a million aliens into our borders, many of whom are the scum of the Old World, who have no respect for our laws and who are adding materially to that great army of bootleggers. Many of these undesirable aliens are not only peddling booze but are bootlegging drugs and narcotics and contributing materially to the breaking down of law and order and lax enforcement in many quarters."

"It is a matter worthy the consideration of our people, as well is that of the Congress of the United States," he concluded. "I, therefore, express the hope that a thorough investigation of these conditions may be had at an early date, and see what can be done to rid the country of one of the blackest crimes in the annals of the government.

Times Do Change

HOW things do change with time. And how surprised those old timers on the Mojave desert would have been could they have known that a few years after their time that tourists would be paying fines for picking cactus in the desert. Cactus, once the bane of the pioneer's existence, is now protected by law and a permit must be secured to pick one.

Legislators Split Over Alien Labor

By LAWRENCE MONFORT

SACRAMENTO, MAY 15—(CNB)—Who's taking care of the fruit-grower's daughter, while the fruit grower's busy growing fruit?

The Mexican, according to Assemblyman E. G. Adams of Livingston, genuinely alarmed by sociological questions arising from industrial conditions which are bringing peons across the border into California yearly.

The Filipino, according to Miss M. R. Glenn, sociological expert of San Francisco, asserting that the little brown brother, while small, has a lot of it which American girls "fall for."

No one, in the opinion of the legislators who heard arguments for and against further spread of other than citizens labor. That efficient young lady, they held, is quite capable of caring for herself.

The peon from below the Rio Grande is spreading through the the United States rapidly, carrying a menace to health through possibility of eventual widespread fusion of blood, while California records show that most of them die paupers after havng been seasonal charges, and that at least 50 percent are afflicted with dangerous social diseases, Adams contended, asking support of a demand on Congress for restriction of immigration from Mexico.

The Filipino youth seeks the white girl in this country, buys himself a car and a new suit of clothes, attends public dances and makes a hit with a certain element of the composite Miss California, the result being a growing tendecy to intermarry and the consequent erection of a hybrid race, Miss Glenn declared.

"The Mexican sticks to his kind, like the shoemaker sticks to his last," Miss Glenn added. The Mexican woman is satisfied with her man and is willing to follow him into the fruit fields to put up with conditions no white woman would tolerate If the Mexican does marry outside of his race, he immediately isolates himself, because his wife will not accept living conditions of his kind."

"On the other hand," argued Adams, "who likes the conditions existing in the public schools where large Mexican populations cause mixed attendance. Once each week American and Mexican children alike must line up and submit to a head scrubbing."

Admitting that large importations of foreign labor of any nationality are undesirable, A. C. Hardison of Santa Paula, member of the state board of agriculture, declared the Mexican most desirable.

"If we close the border or restrct immigration, large numbers of people will be bootlegged in," said the southern farm leader.

"Fifty percent of those now entering are not coming through border stations." Adams retorted, declaring the Box bill before Congress would meet the situation by increasing border patrols.

Hardison and Miss Glenn agreed that white labor scorns the fruit orchard labor when picking times comes, and the latter declared a giant swing around the United States by a growing number of American - born, displaced by a too rapid advacement of labor-saving devices is becoming one of the most serious charity problcms which the nation has to face

"Displaced in large eastern cities by an industrial slump, this class of American labor fliers westward to California, works if work is available, and demands Community Chest or other organized charity assistance if it is not, said the social engineer. Eventually the people complete a giant swing back to their former homes, where they are again dislodged by economic stress and the grand circuit is begun all over again."

What is pronounced to be one of the largest barite deposits in California has been uncovered on the Spanish mine property by Fred W. Bradley in the Washington district, Nevada county The barite also contains considerable gold.

Visible evidence of the strike of high grade made in the Boundary mine in Grass Valley last week was given to Sacramentans when an automobile loaded with about $10,000 worth of specimen ore stopped in Sacramento enroute to the U. S. mint at San Francisco. One large piece reported to contain $2,000 worth of foliated gold.

Let's raid the ICE BOX

Home from the movies, a party or a dance—tired and happy—not quite ready for bed. "Let's raid the icebox!"

What so delightful as these midnight feasts that only an icebox can provide? A bowl of salad left over from last night's dinner still crisp, green and appetizing. The remains of a roast, fresh and juicy—better than ever. Just the thing for a sandwich. Ginger ale, already chilled—and plenty of crystal clear ice tinkling in the tall glasses. A bowl of mayonnaise to go with the cold asparagus and that one left-over artichoke. Ice cold milk. Cool, creamy butter. Fruit and cheese just cold enough.

Between meals or at meals, fresh flavorful foods demand a well iced icebox. There is no substitute.

C. D. Jessup of this city has presented the University of California with a case of dental instruments used by his father, Dr. Thomas E. Jessup, one of the pioneer dentists of San Francisco. The case contains many instruments used before electricty and machinery came to take such an important place in dentistry.

Dr. Jessup began the practice of his profession in San Francisco during the '60s, and for many years maintained an office at the corner of Sutter and Montgomery streets. His son possesses an article which appeared in a newspaper of that time in which Dr. Jessup is given credit for originating the process now known as crowning a tooth.

Mrs. Jack Strand and daughter spent the week end with relatives in Turlock.

Library Site May Be Sold

The sale of the present site of the Redwood City public library and the use of the proceeds of the sale for the erection of a new and improved library near the city hall, appeared to be favored by all present at a public meeting called by the board of trustees of the Sequoia high school district Friday evening. The meeting was called to discuss the attitude which the board of trustees of the district should take.

The land on which the library stands was given to the town for the use of a library in 1904 by the trustees of the high school district. In their grant to the town, however, it was stipulated that the land must be used for library purposes. In the event that the land is put to other uses, it is provided that the title shall revert to the school district.

The library is now in the heart of the business section, and it is believed that the land is now too valuable for business purposes to be maintained for a library. At the same time the present library is becoming too small and a larger building is required.

The school board expressed its willingess to sell its rights to the town provided that the people of the district desire it. It was explained that in the event that the trustees do not take this action that the present ibrary will be enlarged instead of the property being sold. As the high school district will gain by improvements. The house has been standing for nearly forty years. R. C. Holmquist has purchased the property, and will at once commence the erection of a business block. His intention is to put up a handsome edifice which can be used for store purposes. It will be the full length and depth of the lot and will have a fine large 12-foot plate glass window in front.

School Thief In Catholic School

The school burglar who has been operating along the peninsula for some weeks broke into the Notre Dame academy on Brewster street some time Saturday night or Sunday. When opening school Monday morning the building was found to have been entered and the interior ransacked by the thief. Entrance was gained by means of a side window.

Not much of value was found by the thief for his efforts but numerous acts of vandalism were performed. The burglar worked by means of matches with which he lighted his way. Burnt matches were found all over the floor.

From the manner in which the burglar worked, it is thought certain that he is the same one who on past occasions entered the San Carlos school, the McKinley and Lincoln schools here, the Christian Science church and other schools and churches of the peninsula.

Plans are progressing for the staging of "Nothing but the Truth," a comedy to be given on June 21 by the local chapters of De Molay and Rainbow Girls.

either proceedure it is felt that no opposition will be made to the sale of the land.

The school trustees will meet tomorrow night to decide on what action they shall take in the matter.

Press Group Holds Annual Get-together

The annual meeting of the San Mateo County Press Association was held Monday evening at Belmont, at which time the election of officers was held. Horace Amphlett, was re-elected president of the association, James D. Hedge and Sam Winklebleck were re-elected vice-president and secretary, respectively.

The publishers in attendance at the meeting were: Horace W. Amphlett, San Mateo Times; E. E. Bramble South City Enterprise; R. A. Canine, Daly City Record; A. B. Cargill, Burlingame Advance-Star; S. D. Cook, San Carlos Enquirer; George E. Dunn, Halfmoon Bay Review; E. J. Halcrow, Belmont Courier; James D. Hedge, Redwood City Standard; S. L. Netherton, Redwood City Times-Gazette, and Sam H. Winklebleck, Redwood City Tribune

Among other matters of interest to the press of the county, the newspapermen discussed the water situation here and the proposed formation of a water district comprised of the entire county. The formation of such a district, it was believed, would make it possible to secure an adequate supply of water for future use, and would relieve the annual shortage of water felt in this locality.

Communication

Redwood City, California.
May 11, 1929.

The Times-Gazette,
Redwood City, Calif.
Gentlemen:

As employees of the largest industry in Redwood City, and residents of this part of the Peninsula, we are askng why a home industry does not get an equal opportunity to compete with the black pavement being put down in this section of the Peninsula

Collectively, we know that concrete or white pavement is the only pavement that should be used on streets and roads subject to the terrific strains of present motor transportation. As residents of Redwood City and the immediate vicinity, we want the best material used. We remember only too well, the undulated surface of Phelps street, and the present pleasing approach to the business center of our city. We are all pleased to tell our frends, when entering Redwood City over Phelps street, that this street was made with Redwood Harbor Cement. Our office holders too, are all proud of this street.

Don't you remember the cost of keeping the black pavement of Phelps street in repair? It was terrific. Even in the summer months riding over that inlet to our city, was like riding the bumps in an amusement park. The jelly-like adobe soil of Redwood City doesn't take kindly to an asphalt coat, it buckles and groans, disrupting the whole surface. We will only point out a few more instances of the wrong type of material being used on the streets of our city, the constant heavy traffic ruining the whole paving, and making the streets dangerous for traffic and a constant drain on the treasury of our city.

Do you know how many times Jefferson street, the one black stretch west of the highway, has been made over in the five years that we have been in Redwood City? Would a concrete pavement have cost any more, in the long run, than a black pavement that has to be rebuilt every few years?

We like to point with pride to the type of homes being built in Redwood City, but look at the streets. This section of fine homes is served by poorly paved streets, the initial cost of which would have given us permanent concrete pavements with very little future expense for minor repairs. Black pavement is a continual source of expense for upkeep, besides having an initial cost in this territory, equal to concrete.

Now that the Middlefield road is inadequate to handle the ever increasing traffic, why not benefit from past experience and put in a permanent mprovement? If four foot shoulders on each side of the highway are necessary, let us get the most value for each dollar expended in that improvement, and put in concrete.

Concrete for Permanence! You have no objectons to the cement that was used thirty or forty years ago. Those concrete sidewalks and walls are good today. The improvement made in cement making all tend to make a vastly superior product. We are making better cement for better concrete and better concrete roads.

We are a part of the population of this county and have a voice in the management of its affairs. We are not recommending an inferior article at slightly lower price, but we are backing up an artcle of known worth and only ask for a equal chance against an outside material. The idea behind this, is to get as much value out of the taxpayers' money as possible, and at the same time, show outsiders that we have fath in our own porducts.

For every mile of black pavement laid down in a city street or highway in Redwood City and vicinity, it is costing us that much more in taxes Black roads are all right for roads in suburbs and villages where traffic is light, but don't take our city and county back to the dark ages by keeping a gang of workmen repairing roads.

Did you ever realize that when the cement plant was built in this vicinity that we workers were going to be residents of Redwood City and take an interest in Redwood City's business? For the average employee of this plant, you can figure a sum of at least $1,800 a year is spent right here in our city, and for every man laid off, it is taking that much money away from Redwood City.

We are going to talk cement and think cement, so that whenever any city or county job comes up, the residents of this county will realize that we have, right here at home, a superior product to that which has been used in the past, and a product that is lower in first cost to the tax payer than the inferior road building material used so extensively about Redwood City.

This letter is signed by 89 employees of the Pacific Portland Cement Company, and the signatures are on file at the Chamber of Commerce.

ICED STRAWBERRIES

Wash and hull a quart of strawberres, mash to a pulp, add half a cup of sugar and the juice of a half a lemon. Mix thoroughly and freeze If an ce-cream freezer is not at hand an easy way is to put the mashed berries into a baking powder tin, and pack it in cracked ice and salt—three parts ice to one part salt.

Strawberries iced in this way are easily prepared — and are sure to become a favored delicacy wherever they are once served.

High Price Seen For State Crops

SACRAMENTO, MAY 15—(CNB)—The over-production bogy, which stalked the trail of the fruit grower last year, can be definitely counted out, so far as the year 1929 is concerned.

Short crops and high prices—such is the tentative forecast of state agricultural experts for the coming summer,particularly as it relates to fruits. While heavy damage has been caused by frost, the state farm surveys indicate that the farmer may, in many instances, take in as much cash for a short crop as he formerly did for a bumper yield. The shortage of California fruit, resulting from the freeze, and the strict embargoes placed against Florida, as a result of the invasion of the Mediterranean fruit fly, will both boost prices, it is declared.

A forecast released today by E. E. Kaufman, federal-state crop reporting expert, gave the following estimates on leading fruit crops for the current year: Peaches, 42 per cent of normal; Apricots, 57 per cent; Pears, 64 per cent; Cherries, 52 per cent Plums, 46 per cent; Prunes, 50 per cent; Almonds, 30 per cent.

Overall and pants factory will soon be in operation at Vallejo with 200 employes.

Bowling along for phenomenal gains in population, accompanied by corresponding increases in property wealth and industrial development, the state has won 2,039,243 new residents during the past eight years, according to Riley's tabulations. In 1920, when the census man made his last check, California's populaton was set at 3,426,861. At the start of 1928, the controller estimated in his new report today, the state's grand total stood at 5,466,104.

Controller Riley's analysis, based on the increase of non-operative property values, which he declares have fairly constant in relations to population growth, indicates that 4,399,569 of California's 5,466,104 citizens are city dwellers.

"Rural California of today represents about 19 per cent of the state population" said Riley's report. There is an unmistakable trend toward the cities, with the great growth of the past few years centering in urban territory. Of course it must be remembered that many of these cities are strictly rural communities, the hub of farm areas."

In one respect, Riley's population estmates touched off a war that promises to rage, until the federal census agents come in to arbitrate the matter. For the first time in several years, San Francisco, according to his tables, has outstripped Los Angeles in population gains. The report had hardly reached the big town of the south before blasts of protest started to roll in, while the San Francisco bay district accompanied the story with tons of allegedly corroborative evidence, claiming even greater things than the controller gave them

But here's Riley's story and he's sticking with it: The San Francisco total, at the start of 1928, had jumped to 698,963, as compared with 661,541 for the preceding year. Los Angeles, for the same period, went to 1,343,923, as against 1,325,059 for the previous year.

Here are the estimates for cities of 20,000 population and over: Los Angeles, 1,343,823; San Francisco, 698,963; Oakland, 312,449; San Diego, 125,194; Sacramento, 101,376; Berkeley, 82,351; Long Beach, 139,467; Pasadena, 65,469; Fresno, 72,616; Stockton, 49,635; San Jose, 56,377; Alameda, 38,344 Vallejo, 22,382 Santa Barbara, 42,368 Riverside, 31,484; San Bernardino, 41,237; Bakersfield, 29,552; Richmond, 21,145; Santa Ana, 34,692 Santa Monica, 53,604.

REAL ESTATE FACTS

Most heirs waste what they get unless it is invested in real estate, says Nathan William MacChesney, general counsel for the National Association of Real Estate Boards.

And other people share this view, points out the Association, for the Probate Court of Cook county, Illinois, in charge of estates left to minors and insane persons, directs that much of such funds, amounting to millions of dollars yearly be invested in real estate securties.

The law of most states protects minor children and persons mentally incompetent by requiring that their guardians or conservators apply to the courts of probate for permission to invest their estates; and the Probate Court of Cook county, Illinois, the largest probate court in the country, has placed properly secured real estate mortgages and bonds high on its list of approved investments, says the Association in its weekly lesson for property owners.

Boys under twenty-one and girls under eighteen who are heirs to or receipts of money must have guardians to administer their affairs, and insane people unable to manage their own estate must have "conservators"; but these managers must take their orders from the "bench."

Where Their Money Goes

For fifteen years experienced and cautious Judge Henry Horner, presiding over the Probate Court at Chicago, has permitted the estate of the young and the weak to be invested in only three classes of securities, as follows:

First, Real Estate Mortgages, notes or bonds where the real estate and its improvements are double the value of the bond issue or note indebtedness. In other words, if the bond issue on a certain project is $1,000,000, Judge Horner's appraisers require that the land and building on it are worth $2,000,000.

This Illinois court takes this precaution on behalf of its children and its incompetents to protect the investments made for them. No matter what happens to a real estate project, it is always worth half of its original value, says the Chicago judge, under whose jurisdiction millions of dollars in estates of minors and incompetents have been invested without the loss of a cent in principle or interest.

Second: U. S. Government Bonds.

Third: State or county bonds, and municipals of prosperous communities. Judge Horner will not approve an investment in a place with a house or two erected on a prairie, which some promoter has called a village.

The second and third classification of securities described above find favor with the Court because, although interest rates are low, they are tax exempt under the federal income tax laws; and in very large estate this factor often offsets the smaller returns.

Site Still Sought For Women's State Prison

SACRAMENTO, MAY 15—(CNB)—All dressed up, but no place to go is the plight today of California's women-kind officially branded as naughty.

With the women's prison bill signed, $475,000 for construction of a prison-farm to accommodate persistent midemeanants, felons and dope additcs is available, but the question of site still appeared up in the air, despite earlier agreement on location at Delhi.

Grandma is cooking with electricity

"JUST keeping up with the times," says Grandma Collins, "I am one of the many new users of the electric range. I was just over at the P G and E's office and they told me one-thousand five-hundred of their customers will get electric ranges this May and June."

The electric range gives a beautiful, clean kitchen and perfect baking to women who love modern methods.

The electric range has white and gray porcelain enamel that makes kitchens attractive. It bakes perfectly. And it does it automatically. The oven heats up to 400 degrees in 9 to 11 minutes—as fast as one can mix biscuits. The open or closed cooking elements are now made smaller to fit your pans. Heat that was formerly wasted goes to work. Food cooks faster, less electricity is used.

While you're downtown, stop in at a dealer's or at our office and see these new electric ranges. Or telephone us and our representative will gladly show you pictures of the many beautiful new models.

Electric water heating is now economical

The cut in rates of a year ago, means that an electric water heater, when used with an electric range, heats water for only one-third to one-half of a cent per gallon. So little to pay for hot water. And a CLEAN, COOL, all-electric kitchen.

No wonder that women using electricity for cooking are turning to electricity for heating water.

Tradition

MUCH that we are—much that we hope to be, rests on the cornerstone of our community—TRADITION! This cornerstone is the foundation upon which to build the living center which was the vision of our stalwart forbears.

What we have achieved as a community we owe to the loyal effort and the invincible spirit of our Civic Forefathers—effort and spirit which has characterized American communities up thru the hard-lived years since the landing of the Mayflower.

Our fathers and grandfathers, amid more humble surroundings, visioned a prosperous, happy living center. Generations of loyal, hardy citizenship has helped in its realization. It is from these intrepid men and women we gain the inspiration for our work. To them we owe our present day opportunities.

Why did they spend the years of effort if not to challenge—to spur us to further achievement?

Why have we these spirited American traditions—of which our community is so much a part—if not to urge us to CARRY ON!

New times have brought new problems—new methods and industries; new communication and transportation systems; new problems requiring new answers; new emergencies demanding new strategy.

We face the task of taking stock of what we have—raising the standards of our community according to national comparisons—strengthening the fabric of our community life and building on to further growth, prosperity and happiness.

THERE IS NO STANDING STILL—WE MOVE FORWARD—OR, WE MOVE BACKWARD.

We present this page in appreciation of the rich heritage left us by "those who went before" and in realization of responsibility to our sons and daughters.

SAME PRESCRIPTION HE WROTE IN 1892

When Dr. Caldwell started to practice medicine, back in 1875, the needs for a laxative were not as great as today. People lived normal lives, ate plain, wholesome food, and got plenty of fresh air. But even that early there were drastic physics and purges for the relief of constipation which Dr. Caldwell did not believe were good for human beings.

The prescription for constipation that he used early in his practice, and which he put in drug stores in 1892 under the name of Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin, is a liquid vegetable remedy, intended for women, children and elderly people, and they need just such a mild, safe bowel stimulant.

This prescription has proven its worth and is now the largest selling liquid laxative. It has won the confidence of people who needed it to get relief from headaches, biliousness, flatulence, indigestion, loss of appetite and sleep, bad breath, dyspepsia, colds, fevers. At your druggist, or write "Syrup Pepsin," Dept. BB, Monticello, Illinois, for free trial bottle.

PICTORIAL GOLF INSTRUCTION

By H. B. MARTIN

Intent Effort Sometimes Destroys Form

EVERY star golfer knows how to play well within himself. That is, he is not guilty of going after every drive as though it meant life or death. There are times when it is necessary to put that little extra effort into the swing to gain a few more yards. Some do it in a way that throws the body out of kilter, making a very awkward or exaggerated finish.

One must make sure to keep the head down in case he goes after a long ball and he must make sure that the body does not do its part of the work too quickly. Tremendous distance gaining is not desirable at the cost of direction.

THE finish of the golf swing can best be described by the wooden figure here shown. The body is shown as it has pulled away from the shot either causing a slice or greatly checking the follow through, an important thing to remember in golf.

The weight of the body should be more than two-thirds on the left foot when the swing is completed. This proves that the club has gone through after the ball. Notice the picture of all the leading golfers and you will observe that they finish on the left foot. This is a very good form and sound fundamental golf.

Getting the Maximum Force

MOST golfers fail to time the shot so that they get the greatest amount of force into the blow. The average good player makes the mistake of hitting the ball just after the maximum amount of speed has been reached. It may only be an inch or so, but this makes a difference, as it takes off just that much from the follow through.

The hardest hitters time the ball so that there is the greatest amount of force expended just at the impact or an inch beyond, which would mean that the ball stays with the club for a longer period. The harder the blow the longer the follow through.

A Light in Front of the Church

The P. G. & E. is preparing to install an electric light in front of the Church of the Nativity. It was badly needed and the supervisors on Monday last granted the request of a number of taxpayers to have it done.

City Council in Session

The Menlo Park city council met Tuesday evening in regular session. Because he is leaving town for several weeks, City Treasurer J. Wm. Ryan sent in his resignation. It was not acted upon but Mayor Ellis agreed to ask Mr. Parks, cashier of the local bank, if he would act in Ryan's absence.

Councilman Weeden reported he had investigated the lighting system and the better way is for the city to take over the lighting for the city of Menlo Park as a whole, and it will not interfere with the lighting district. The revenue or tax for the lights can be collected by the county the same as the other taxes.

Attorney Whitworth reported in re the opening of Live Oak street, that he had intervewed Mrs. Plate and her price is $1050 for her lot and if condemnations proceedings were had it would cost about $250. It so appears that 35 ft. of Mrs. Plate's lot is needed and 31 ft. belonging to another party to make the 66 ft. street. After much controversy entered into by the people present as well as the Council, on motion and second of Councilman Weeden and Dale, it was decided that Mayor Ellis appoint a committee of three citizens to look into this matter and report back at the next meeting. Mayor Ellis asked time to consider before making the appointments.

The city attorney presented a gasoline ordinance which had been approved by the fire chief, and on motion and second of Councilman Blake and Walker an ordinance of the city of Menlo Park regulating the keeping, storing and use of gasoline, benzine, naptha, petroleum, petroleum products, and other hydro carbon liquids within said city was introduced.

A discussion arose as to the problem of weed abatement. The attorney stated in order to frame a resoluton it would be necessary to obtain a description of every lot from the tax roll. Mayor Ellis said he did not believe it necessary to go to this expense. Nothing further was done.

The chief of police submitted prices on five cars suitable for the use of the police department. The question arose as to the legality of buying without first getting bids. Attorney Whitworth was asked to render a decision but said he was not prepared to do so by reason of the fact it is more than $300. It was allowed to lay over until the next meeting.

Under the direction of the new fire chief, the apparatus and equipment of the Woodside Fire District is receiving a complete overhauling in preparation for the increased fire hazard of the summer months. The big engine was taken out on Sunday last and put through its spaces testing out the hose.

The Bear Gulch Water Co. has completed its new eight inch main along Albion avenue to its junction with Portola avenue. It will be connected with the main on Portola avenue thus insuring circulation in what was before a dead end of a pipe It will also increase the water pressure for those on the Canyada road who have been finding the water supply inadequate for their needs.

Several fire hydrants will be installed along this new main thus furnishing fire protection to many places that have heretofore lacked protection.

The painters, plumbers and decorators are busy renovating the Woodside Inn, recently moved from its old location. It is the intention of James V. Neuman, the owner, to have it opened and run as a family hotel.

Although the Family Farm has not officially opened for the season, members of the Family Club are takng advantage of the opportunity it offers to enjoy the thrill of these spring days. Each week-end finds a goodly number escaping the dull round of care at the Farm quarters.
